Her big break came in 2009 when she was fourteen years old. Zendaya played the role of Rocky Blue in Disney Channel's Shake It Up. The show was about two friends working toward their dream of becoming professional dancers. Zendaya and her dad moved to Los Angeles, and she began her career as a TV star!

Zendaya has five half brothers and sisters, and many nieces and nephews. One of her nieces, whose nickname is Zink, is actually a year older than she is! Since most of her siblings are much older, Zendaya spent a lot of time with Zink growing up. They are still close friends.

If she hadn't become an actor, Zendaya would have liked to have been a teacher. One way she honors this passion is by working with the #WeNeedMore initiative to provide access to technology and learning for all children.

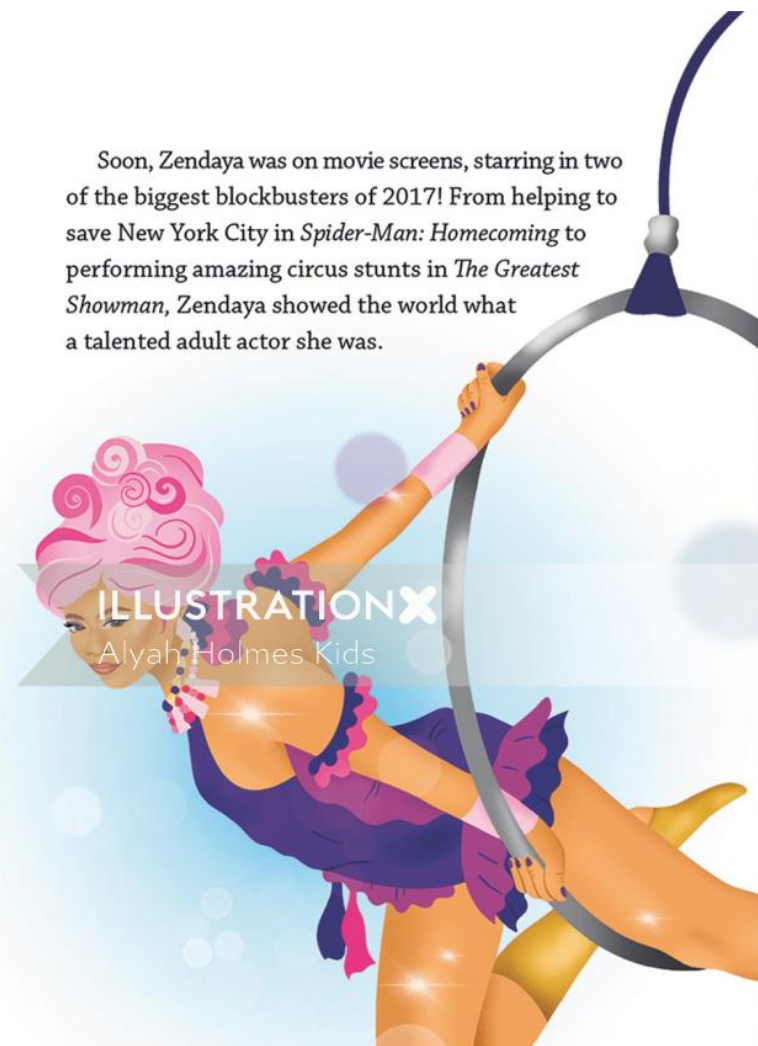

Through this program, she brought new laptops to the elementary school her mom taught at for twenty years.

Soon, Zendaya was on movie screens, starring in two of the biggest blockbusters of 2017! From helping to save New York City in Spider-Man: Homecoming to performing amazing circus stunts in The Greatest Showman, Zendaya showed the world what a talented adult actor she was.

In addition to being a performer, Zendaya is a fashion icon. She has modeled for multiple fashion brands, walked the runway at New York and Paris Fashion Weeks, and won many best dressed awards.

In addition to acting and dancing, Zendaya was also interested in singing! She released her first single, “Swag It Out,” when she was fifteen. Her self-titled album came out in 2013.

Thanks to her hip-hop and hula lessons as a child, Zendaya had some great moves to show off in her music videos. Her dancing was so impressive she was Dancing with the Stars. She was one of the youngest contestants to ever compete on the show—and she came in second place!
