NEW SCHOOL APPROACH

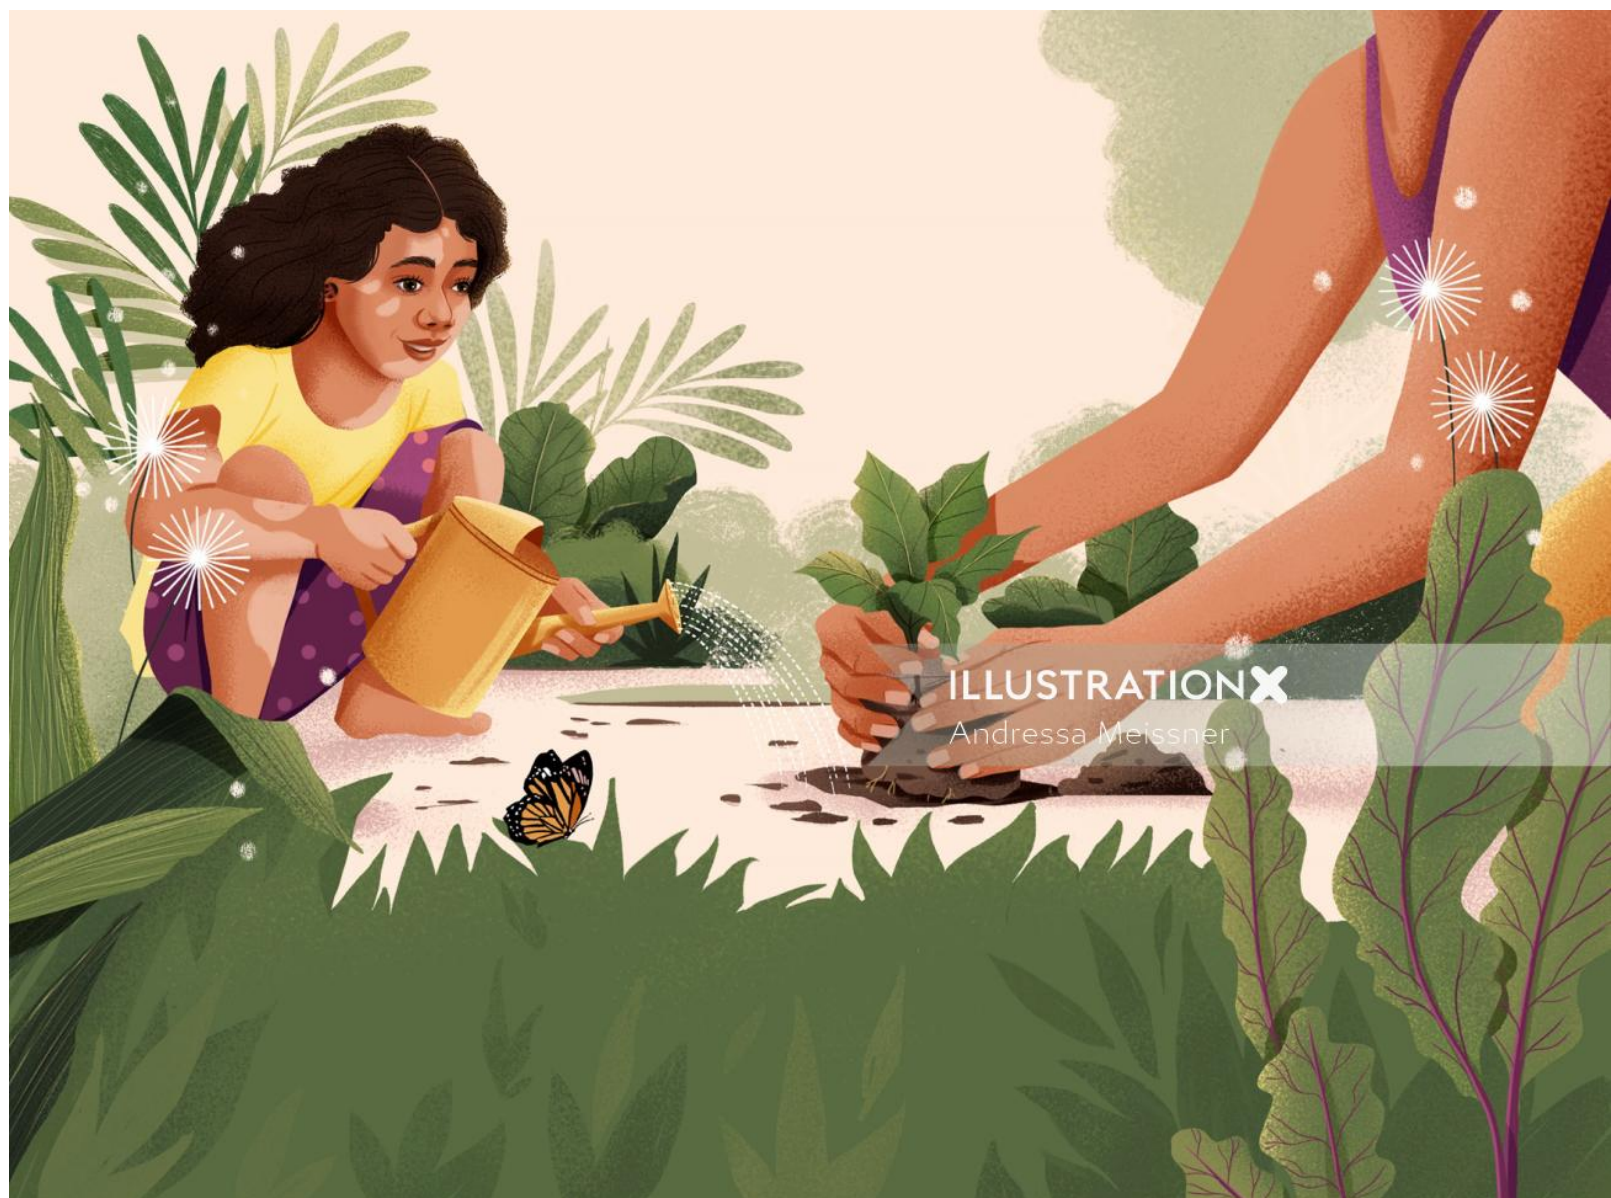

In The New Now Issue, we look at how people are innovating to contend with climate change and make wine more inclusive. First up: recently opened businesses following new, explicitly antisnob models. Turn the page to learn more. >>

BLUE ORIGIN ORBITAL REEF

Abrigaria até 10 pessoas em 830 m³ de espaço interno (quase o mesmo da ISS, que possui 932 m³). Seria formada por módulos de três andares com laboratórios, horta e academia. A ideia é alugar espaço para empresas que queiram fazer pesquisas científicas e ações de marketing. Se sair do papel, será construída em parceria com a Boeing.

NANORACKS STARLAB

Projetada para acomodar quatro pessoas, teria volume interno de 340 m³ (equivalente a um apartamento de 110 metros quadrados). O módulo principal, onde os astronautas ficariam, é o Habitat – o que facilita seu lançamento. Está sendo desenvolvido pela Nanoracks, que atualmente leva carga para a ISS, e pela Lockheed Martin (que produz os caças F-35).

NORTHROP GRUMMAN PROJETO SEM NOME

É o projeto que divulgou menos detalhes. A Northrop (que construiu o X-47B, o ônibus espacial autônomo dos EUA) disse apenas que sua estação, projetada para durar 15 anos em órbita, teria capacidade inicial para quatro pessoas, depois ampliada para oito “e além”. Usaria o módulo habitável HALO, que já está sendo construído.
