What changes in the vine

The remaining canopy takes over. With the most efficient sugar-producing leaves removed, the vine relies on the more mature leaves in the canopy — allowing sugar to be produced in a slower, more controlled way.

Some winery details remain part of our craft _ the foundation is grown, not engineered.

The winery (considered, not complicated)

Thoughtful choices in the winery. We make careful, considered decisions in the winery — tasting, blending, and selecting the best options to shape the final wine. While there are a few techniques and refinements, we keep to ourselves, most of the magic happens in the vineyard.

Selective leaf removal

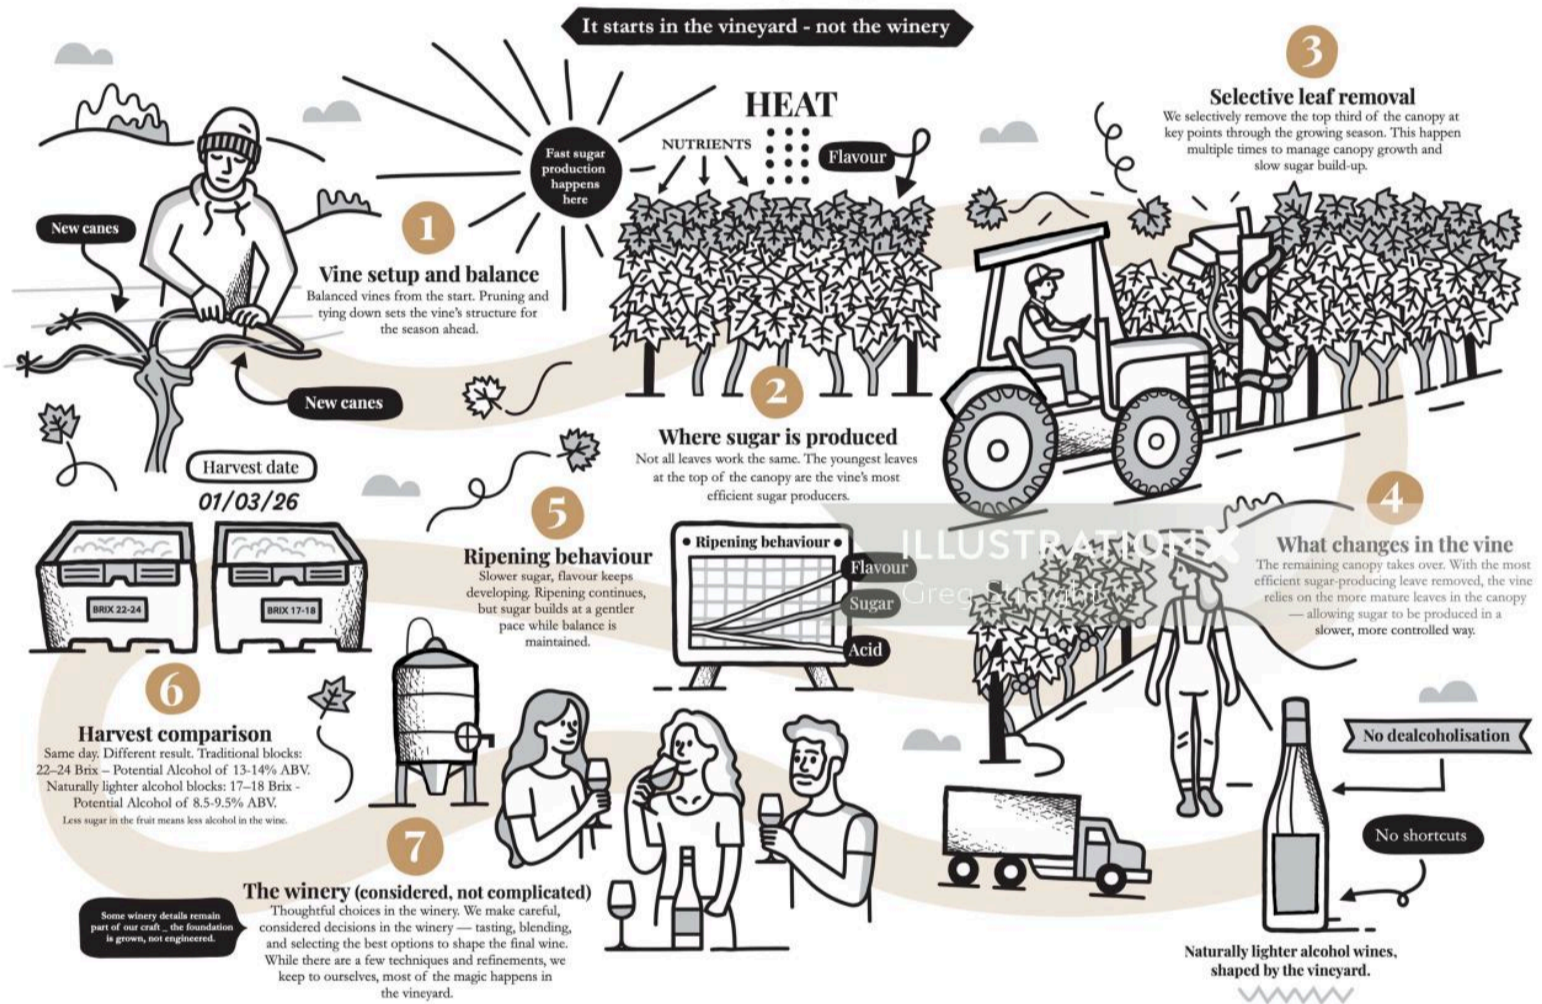

We selectively remove the top third of the canopy at key points through the growing season. This happens multiple times to manage canopy growth and slow sugar build-up.
